

ABSTRACT

An electrical machine comprises a magnetically permeable core. The core is elongated to thereby define a lengthwise direction and a profile that is transverse to the lengthwise direction. Coils are wound about the core profile and sequentially disposed along the lengthwise direction. The core profile has a surface that is bowed outward.

12

[illegible]